

Hiring H-2 Workers from Haiti: Resources for Employers

Help Haiti - Hire a Haitian

In January 2012, the US Department of Homeland Security added Haiti to the list of countries eligible for the H-2 visa program to work in temporary low-skill jobs in the United States. The Center for Global Development (CGD), a non-profit organization in Washington, D.C. that conducts economic research on US policy toward developing countries, advocated that Haiti be included in the program as a means for economic recovery. CGD has identified several resources for employers interested in Haitian labor.

Recruiters in Haiti

US employers are free to work with any recruiter they choose in Haiti. CGD has identified the following reputable recruiters in Port-au-Prince, Haiti who have expressed interest in finding workers for the H-2 visa program:

Government of Haiti

Haiti's Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor has a National Office on Migration (ONM) that is working with the International Organization on Migration (IOM) to facilitate information about the visa program, ensuring fair recruiting practices for eligible workers who understand the legal requirement to return to Haiti. For specific contacts in these agencies, please contact the CGD migration email below.

US Embassy Processing

The Consular Affairs Division of the US Embassy in Port-au-Prince has expressed their willingness to talk or meet with US employers interested in hiring Haitian workers through the H-2 visa program. The embassy has set up the following email address to answer questions about the H-2 visa process: h2papriv@state.gov
