
Contents

Preface	vii
Acknowledgments	xi
1 Introduction	1
2 The Stagnant Low-Income States	7
Political Characteristics	11
Economic Characteristics	28
The Current Relationship with the World Economy	30
The Implications for Development	34
3 The Contradictions of Current Aid Doctrines	37
From Conditionality to Selectivity	38
Donor Fragmentation and the Search for Ownership	46
Moving Away from State-Led Development Strategies	57
4 Understanding the Failures of Aid Reform	65
Contradictions among Donor Objectives	66
Why Is Institutional Capacity So Elusive?	70
Unchanging Donor Incentives	74
5 What to Do?	79
Promote Democracy in the Stagnant Low-Income States	84
Build a New Aid Relationship	88
Build State Capacity	93
Beyond Aid	97
A Coalition for Change?	100

References		103
Index		113
Tables
Table 2.1	Economic characteristics of stagnant low-income states, 2000	9
Table 2.2	Political longevity in poorest countries, 1960–2003	12
Table 2.3	Developing countries with parliamentary systems	15
Table 2.4	International economic links of stagnant low-income states	31
Table 2.5	Aid winners and losers: Evolution of ODA during the 1990s	34
Table 3.1	Distribution of aid recipients by the number of donors, 1999–2001	48
Table 3.2	Top three donors of gross ODA, 2000–01 average	54
Figures
Figure 2.1	Public employment in the civil service, mid-1990s	25
Figure 2.2	ODA in stagnant low-income states, 1990–2000	33